BABIES BANNED FROM ELECTRONICS

Recently Taiwan made it ILLEGAL For parents to let children under two use electronic gadgets. Any parents who allow these small children to use iPads and smart-phones Face hefty Fines.

UNDER 18s

The new law also states that parents must ensure that under-18s only use electronic products For a 'reasonable' length of time. This means that iPads, smart-phones and televisions are now listed alongside cigarettes and alcohol as restricted items.

The intention of the law is to protect young people by stopping them using electronic devices For more than 30 minutes at a time. Recent research has shown that online addiction among young people has become a serious problem with millions of children considered 'web junkies'.

LOVE REVENGE SPECIAL

This year the San Francisco Zoo had a new St Valentine's Day Fund-raising campaign that offered the opportunity to adopt a hairy scorpion or hissing cockroach in honour of your ex.

The zoo highlighted two of its less desirable inhabitants through the 'adopt-an-animal' love program that usually raises money For the care of more cuddly-looking creatures, such as pandas and bears.

But this year, For $50 (± R610) and up, donors could adopt a scorpion and have the zoo send a certificate and stuffed creature to the 'ex-person' who inspired the revenge adoption.

To ensure that they got the message of lack of affection, the cheaper option of the cockroach Valentine only set the sender back $25 (± R305).

Skin Stickers

Say hello to wearable photo-sharing. A newly-launched company in Holland provides a service that will turn your Instagram photos into temporary tattoos.

The Netherlands-based service, which ships these Fleeting 'Insta-tats' worldwide, will sell you 12 temporary tattoos created From a dozen Instagram photos of your choosing (which must, however, be From your own Instagram account), For a fee and post them to you Free. The temporary tattoos are laser printed in colour onto temporary tattoo paper, and will apparently last For up to a week, depending on how carefully you treat them. Facebook: Picattoo
