

Small and efficient homes, whether in the city, country or even on the road, are becoming more and more popular. Interior design innovations are making more people realise that less can be more!

Living in a pod

The environmentally-minded love them for their efficiency (low heating and lighting costs). The spiritual appreciate the way they encourage us to let go of all but the most necessary worldly possessions.

POD LIVING IN THE MOTHER CITY

Two main reasons for the high student dropout rate are money and accommodation. For anyone wanting to study in Cape Town (which is one of the most expensive cities in SA) there is good news.

A new, trendy pod-dwelling system has solved both problems for students and come up with a cool affordable solution - 'Pod Dwelling'.

Each pod is a comfy well-appointed 'mini studio' with a bathroom pod, a comfortable bed, a wardrobe, a workstation, a custom-designed kitchenette with a mini-refrigerator and a plate stove.

Established in Wynberg, there are seven floors with 435 studios accommodating 469 students. It has everything to make student living and studying in Cape Town easy and enjoyable.

High speed Wi-Fi is accessible anywhere in the residence, including a vibey recreational lounge as well as quiet study lounges. There is also 24-hour manned concierge security, a free shuttle service, free Wi-Fi, an on-site gym and laundry and secure underground parking.

Rentals start from R2 500 a month for students sharing a flat, and R3 600 a month for your own space. The rent includes Wi-Fi, transport, electricity, parking and access to the on-site gym.
